

– Modeling Complex Physical Phenomena –

We strive to develop next-generation manufacturing systems rooted in essential fluid dynamics. Our work focuses on multiphase flow phenomena particularly abrasive finishing and cavitation. While computational fluid dynamics and experiments form the backbone of our research, we also advance production systems and industrial IoT technologies by harnessing modeling techniques and data science.

